I had an arranged meeting for the interview with Mrs. Boone on the lunch break. I was feeling little bit nervous after knocking at the cabinet of science teachers and waiting for someone to let me in. When I entered the room, I introduced myself to Mrs. Boone – the IB chemistry and IB biology teacher of Nový PORG who had studied at the University of Edinburgh and the University of Tennessee and taught students in multiple countries all around the world.

I was thrilled and grateful that Mrs. Boone was willing to give me her time and answer all of my questions even during her free lesson.

“I was a huge nerd, and I was totally focused on my studies all through high school and university,” she revealed about her student life.

Mrs. Boone grew up in Tennessee with her parents and older brother. Apparently, her parents were “strict but fair” which could be one of the factors that helped her get to the position where she is now. She said she had been studying at university when she decided to pursue her career as a teacher and that she does this profession for more than 15 years now. She also admitted that she really enjoys teaching and that she used to teach at a school in Costa Rica before coming to Prague.

I asked Mrs. Boone what were her hobbies. She said she liked movies, reading and hanging out with her dog, which made me ask her a follow-up question, if she is a dog or a cat person. To which she answered: “I’m both. I really want a cat and I’m trying to convince my husband to let me get a cat.”

“I was living in Czech Republic for six years then I moved to Costa Rica for three years and now I’m back here.” Says Mrs. Boone.

Mrs. Boone told me that if she could go back in time and change one thing in her life, she would stick to learning Czech ten years ago, because back then, she didn’t know that she would come back to Czech Republic. I asked Mrs. Boone, what is her dream holiday destination, to which she responded: “The Maldives, I want to go before they disappear from rising sea levels.”

This interview was a wonderful experience for me because I had the opportunity to talk to one of the teachers at Nový PORG – a prestige private school which offers the best possible education. Not only did I learn a lot about Mrs. Boone’s personal life, I also really enjoyed talking to her and I hope she’s going to be my chemistry teacher in the future.
